"We priests should feel that the following words, which he put on the lips of Christ, are meant for each of us personally: "I will charge my ministers to proclaim to sinners that I am ever ready to welcome them, that my mercy is infinite." From St. John Mary Vianney we can learn to put our unfailing trust in the Sacrament of Penance, to set it once more at the center of our pastoral concerns, and to take up the "dialogue of salvation" which it entails. The Cure of Ars dealt with different penitents in different ways. Those who came to his confessional drawn by a deep and humble longing for God's forgiveness found in him the encouragement to plunge into the "flood of divine mercy" which sweeps everything away by its vehemence. If someone was troubled by the thought of his own frailty and inconstancy, and fearful of sinning again, the Cure would unveil the mystery of God's love in these beautiful and touching words: "The good Lord knows everything. Even before you confess, He already knows that you will sin again, yet He still forgives you. How great is the love of our God: He even forces Himself to forget the future, so that He can grant us His forgiveness!" But to those who made a lukewarm and rather indifferent confession of sin, he clearly demonstrated by his own tears of pain how "abominable" this attitude was: "I weep because you do not weep", he would say. "If only the Lord were not so good! But He is so good! One would have to be a brute to treat so good a Father this way!" He awakened repentance in the hearts of the lukewarm by forcing them to see God's own pain at their sins reflected in the priest who was their confessor. To those who, on the other hand, came to him already desirous of and suited to a deeper spiritual life, he flung open the abyss of God's love, explaining the untold beauty of living in union with Him and dwelling in His presence: "Everything in God's sight, everything with God, everything to please God,... How beautiful it is! And he taught them to pray: "My God, grant me the grace to love You as much as I possibly can"."

ON THE GOSPEL

You have heard that it was said to them of old: Thou shalt not kill.
We do not think it a sin to kill a twig, because we heard it declared that Thou shalt not kill, as the Manichean folly images; nor do we understand that it was said of irrational animals. For by the most just law of the Creator their life and death is made subject to us. Accordingly, the commandment Thou shalt not kill, is to be understood only with reference to men... They, however, who by God's authority wage war do not act contrary to this precept; neither do they who in the fulfillment of public office punish criminals with death, in strict accord with reason and justice.
~ St. Augustine of Hippo, Bishop, Doctor; 354-430.
